Top tips for taking care of your real Christmas tree

Cut Christmas trees should be treated like a real flower arrangement. When you get home, saw half an inch off the bottom of the trunk and immediately sit the tree in a bucket of clean water. This enables it to soak up the water it needs which will keep its needles alive and stop them drying up and dropping off. When you set it up inside, choose a stand or bucket that holds water and keep the water topped up. We've found that even the 'no needle drop' trees look much fresher in the house if they are kept in water, and, it encourages the release of their natural scent too.

Potted Christmas trees have been growing in their pots for at least a year and with normal care they will live on after Christmas. Water regularly and put back outside gradually. If the weather is very cold, keep your tree in a shed or garage before putting it outside in a sheltered spot. Remember to check it for water even in winter. Feed and water it during Spring and Summer.
